Conflict and Tension 1918-1939 is an AQA wider world depth study that investigates international relations. The course focuses on what caused the Second World War. It considers how and why the war happened, and why it was so challenging to find resolutions to the issues which caused it. You will study the roles of key individuals and groups in influencing change, and how they were affected by and shaped by international affairs.

Purpose
This study will help you to interpret the intricacies and diverse interests of different individuals and states. You will investigate themes such as self-determination, ideas of internationalism and the problems of revising the peace settlement. This course will enable you to develop historical thinking, to identify and analyse causation and consequence, and encourage you to critically question sources.

Enquiries
Conflict and Tension 1918-1939 is split into 3 key enquiries. Peacemaking; the League of Nations and international peace; and the origins and outbreak of the Second World War.

- Enquiry 1 looks at the armistice at the end of the First World War and the aims of the peacemakers. You will also study the Versailles settlement, the impact of the treaty, and also the wider settlement.
- Enquiry 2 looks at the League of Nations, diplomacy outside the League, and its collapse in the 1930s.
- Enquiry 3 looks the development of tension in the 1930s, its escalation, and the outbreak of war in 1939.

Key Individuals
Some of the key individuals studied on this course include:

- Neville Chamberlain.
- Winston Churchill.
- Georges Clemenceau.
- Edouard Daladier.
- David Lloyd George.
- Adolf Hitler.
- Benito Mussolini.
- Edouard Daladier.
- John Maynard Keynes.
- Franklin Delano Roosevelt.
- Woodrow Wilson.

Key Events
Some of the key events you will study on this course include:

- The end of the First World War.
- The Paris Peace Conference.
- The signing of the Treaty of Versailles and international reaction to it.
- The formation of the League of Nations and how it worked in practice in the 1920s.
- Flash points of tension, including events in Poland, Corfu and Bulgaria.
- The Wall Street Crash, the Washington Arms Conference, events in Manchuria and Abyssinia.
- The reoccupation of the Rhineland, Anschluss with Austria, the Sudeten Crisis, Appeasement, the Nazi-Soviet Pact, the invasion of Poland, and the declaration of war.

Assessment
The Conflict and Tension 1918-1939 course forms part of paper 1, which you have a total of 2 hours to complete. You should spend 1 hour on this section of the paper. There will be 4 exam questions, which will assess what you have learned on the course.

- Question 1 is worth 4 marks. This question will require you to examine a source. It assesses your ability to analyse and evaluate, using a source to make a judgement.
- Question 2 is worth 12 marks. This question will require you to examine 2 sources. It assesses your ability to evaluate sources and apply your contextual knowledge.
Question 3 is worth 8 marks. This question will require you to show your knowledge and understanding of the key features and characteristics of the course. You will have the opportunity to show your ability to explain and analyse historical events using second order concepts such as causation, consequence, change, continuity, similarity and difference.

Question 4 is worth 16 marks, plus 4 marks for spelling and grammar. Here, similar skills to those in question 3 will be assessed, but you will also be required to make a judgement in an extended response.
THIS IS A SAMPLE.

The First World War Armistice

"Our men marched singing, with a smiling light in the eyes. They had done their job, and it was finished with the greatest victory in the world." - Philip Gibbs

What was the armistice at the end of the First World War?
The armistice was an agreement to end the First World War.

Who signed the armistice at the end of the First World War?
The armistice was signed by France, Britain, and Germany.

Where was the armistice at the end of the First World War signed?
The armistice that ended the First World War was signed in a railway carriage in Compiegne, France.

When was the armistice at the end of the First World War signed?
The armistice was signed at 5:12am on 11th November 1918, although it was agreed the ceasefire would begin at 11am on the 11th day of the 11th month.

What were the terms of the armistice at the end of the First World War?
There were 7 main terms agreed including:

- German troops were to leave France, Luxembourg, Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine within 14 days.
- Once they had left these territories, German troops were then to leave the territory on the west side of the Rhine.
- The treaties that Germany had forced on Russia and Romania would be cancelled.
- The German fleet would be taken away.
- Germany was to give up all its submarines, 5,000 cannons, 25,000 machine guns, 1,700 planes, 5,000 locomotive engines and 150,000 railcars.
- All British, French and Italian prisoners of war were to be freed after a peace treaty had been agreed upon.
- Germany would be blamed for the war and pay reparations for the damage that resulted from the war.

Why was the armistice agreed at the end of the First World War?
There were 3 main reasons why the armistice was agreed including:

- The First World War dragged on far longer than expected. It caused huge damage to both sides. Millions of soldiers and civilians were killed, along with the destruction of houses, factories, farms and railways.
- In March 1917, after defeating Russia, it seemed as if Germany was poised to defeat the Allies. However, the USA joined in April 1917 and the Allies made a number of important advances.
- In 1918, Germany wanted to bring a swift end to the war, with the Spring Offensive from March to July. When this failed, Germany began to consider surrender.

How did the Allies react to the armistice at the end of the First World War?
Britain, France and the USA celebrated the end of the conflict. They were happy the war was over, due to the economic and social impact it had had on them.

What was the reaction to the armistice in Germany at the end of the First World War?
Many Germans were upset at how the war had ended. German soldiers believed the armistice would not last and fighting would resume again; they couldn't believe that they had lost.
What was the difference between the armistice and the Treaty of Versailles at the end of the First World War?
The armistice at the end of the war was different from the Treaty of Versailles, as it was a temporary measure until an official peace settlement could be agreed.

DID YOU KNOW?
The armistice was signed in a train carriage in a woodland clearing, just north of Paris.

THE PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE
This was the conference where the five treaties which ended the war were decided, including the famous Treaty of Versailles.

What was the Paris Peace Conference?
In 1919, representatives from around the world gathered to discuss the terms of peace after the First World War. They met in the Palace of Versailles, just outside the centre of Paris.

Which treaties were decided at the Paris Peace Conference?
5 treaties were decided at the Paris Peace Conference, and 1 treaty agreed later on. They included:

- The Treaty of Versailles was signed in June 1919, and officially ended the war between the Allies and Germany.
- The Treaty of St Germain was signed in September 1919, and officially ended the war between the Allies and Austria.
- The Treaty of Neuilly was signed in November 1919, and officially ended the war between the Allies and Bulgaria.
- The Treaty of Trianon was signed in June 1920, and officially ended the war between the Allies and Hungary.
- The Treaty of Sevres was signed in August 1920, and officially ended the war between the Allies and Turkey.
- The Treaty of Lausanne was a renegotiation of the Treaty of Sevres and was signed in June 1923 between Turkey and representatives of Britain, France and several associated powers. It was the only post-war treaty not to be decided at the Paris Peace Conference.

Who were the victors at the Paris Peace Conference?
Some nations arrived in Paris as the victors of the First World War, known collectively as 'the Allies'. The 5 main ones were:

- Britain.
- France.
- The USA.
- Italy.
- Japan.

Who were the losers at the Paris Peace Conference?
The losing nations were given few powers of negotiation at the Paris Peace Conference. They included:

- Germany.
- Austria-Hungary.
Bulgaria.
The Ottoman Empire (later Turkey).
Russia had become a communist country and had surrendered to Germany in March 1918, so was not included in the peace talks.

Who attended the 1919 Paris Peace Conference?
Hundreds of important politicians travelled to Paris for the peace conference including:

- The conference was attended by representatives of 32 countries.
- Soviet Russia was excluded from the talks as it had left the war in March 1918 and already signed a peace treaty with Germany.
- The defeated nations were excluded from the talks and could not contribute to decisions.
- The most influential negotiators at the peace conference were the leaders of France, Britain and the USA. These became known as the ‘Big Three’.
